

What is a question you are asking yourself within your Growing Edge?

how do you implement these ideals

Putting EDI work into action

I think many of us have great intent, but how do we implement change?

How can I be a quality ally?

How do we ensure everyone has a hand and active voice in the ongoing creation of this space?

What are my blind spots in my own community, and how can I address those?

How do I offer meaningful support to those I do not share a vision with?

What and who and I not thinking about and should be, within my own community?

Is it possible to work with community partners who are actively (not intentionally, perhaps) keeping people away from "the table?"

What is a question you are asking yourself within your Growing Edge?

How can we make our public space more inviting?

Recognition of individuals doing the work and uplifting their contributions to communities

How do we influence change beyond the lawn?

How to I ensure our city is everyone's city. How do I help switch from a welcoming place to a place where you feel that you own it?

How do we bring the uninterested into the conversation?

How do we bridge the polite barrier for effective inclusion and equity?

How do I learn to see whom I've been taught not to see?

What is a question you are asking yourself within your Growing Edge?

HOW

How do we incorporate conversations impacting the community into concerts?

How can we make an equitable impact LONG TERM?

addressing anti-Blackness in all aspects of the work & in/with the community

What can I do to make spaces and conversations I am in more inclusive? How can I uplift voices other than my own?

What communities or individuals find our public space welcoming? What communities or individuals do NOT find our public space welcoming? Why?

Starting conversations

How can I expand my way of being & interacting to make my world more inclusive?

What does leadership look like, and power dynamics, in an more equitable nonprofit structure?

What is a question you are asking yourself within your Growing Edge?

land + access + gentrification + colonization

How do we continually assess our degree of EDII?

how do we go to diverse communities and seem sincere and not like we want to hit quotas and percentages

How can I address protocols in my organization?

How do we foster one community, when there is listening and healing to be done
